EDITOR IN DISTRESS

Did you have a good Thanksgiving? I did. I got to my parents house right before the Cowboys played. Pretty good game. Them winning definitely helped with the thankful mood. I was definitely excited about all the home cooking.

Lately I've been on the rice and ramen diet. Not so much because lack of money, but because I'm too lazy to cook. I hate to cook. I'm a messy cook and I really don't want to add more chores to my life, which would be cleaning up the kitchen. So, I ate a lot on Thanksgiving. At least once in hour that day once I got there. Now, later that night I wasn't feeling so thankful when I woke up with the stomach ache from hell. I'm sure eating Doritos after pecan pie was the issue. I know... gross, but every time I eat something sugary I need to eat something salty to balance it out. How's that recipe for future health issues. It was nice to get away from Dallas. I wished I could have stayed another day, but my room mate had a party Saturday night and I wanted to make sure no one but my friends were in my room that night.

If you watched the Rachel Maddow Show Monday, you saw they did an update on The Lodge and Newt's Nook. If not you can read the article about Newt's Nook opening at the Animal Guardians sanctuary on page 15. If you're looking to adopt a pit bull, then do so there and get a gift certificate for The Lodge or Stratos Global Greek Taverna, plus The Lodge will donate another $100 to the shelter for every dog adopted through Valentine's Day 2010.

This week looks to be pretty busy for me. Luckily I got some free tickets (courtesy of Adrenaline PR) or I would be staying home resting. Wednesday, Dec. 2 you can head bang with me at the Megadeth/ Machinehead show at the Palladium (Show info on page 6). I've never seen either band live, so I'm pretty excited about that. Beer funds will be low so there might be a heavy metal parking lot party before the show. I'm going to do my best to make it out to the Gifts and Garters show on Saturday, Dec. 5 to see ANE columnist Vivienne Vermuth perform (info on page 7). Then Sunday, Dec. 6 I get to see the hard hitting Chimaira who I interviewed for this weeks issue (page 6). They are opening up for Trivium at the House of Blues. Sorry I'm behind on that Genitorturers interview I promised last month. I've been busy and the interview was tape recorded and my typing skills are the worst. Obviously it wasn't asked if I could type when the job was offered to me. -Gil Tha Thrill

THE SLEAZE GALLERY

By: Ms. Misha Moré

One of My favorite fetishes is sleaze.

Those who love sleaze know it so well: sordid; a seedy district; the seamy side of life or squalid atmosphere of intrigue and betrayal.

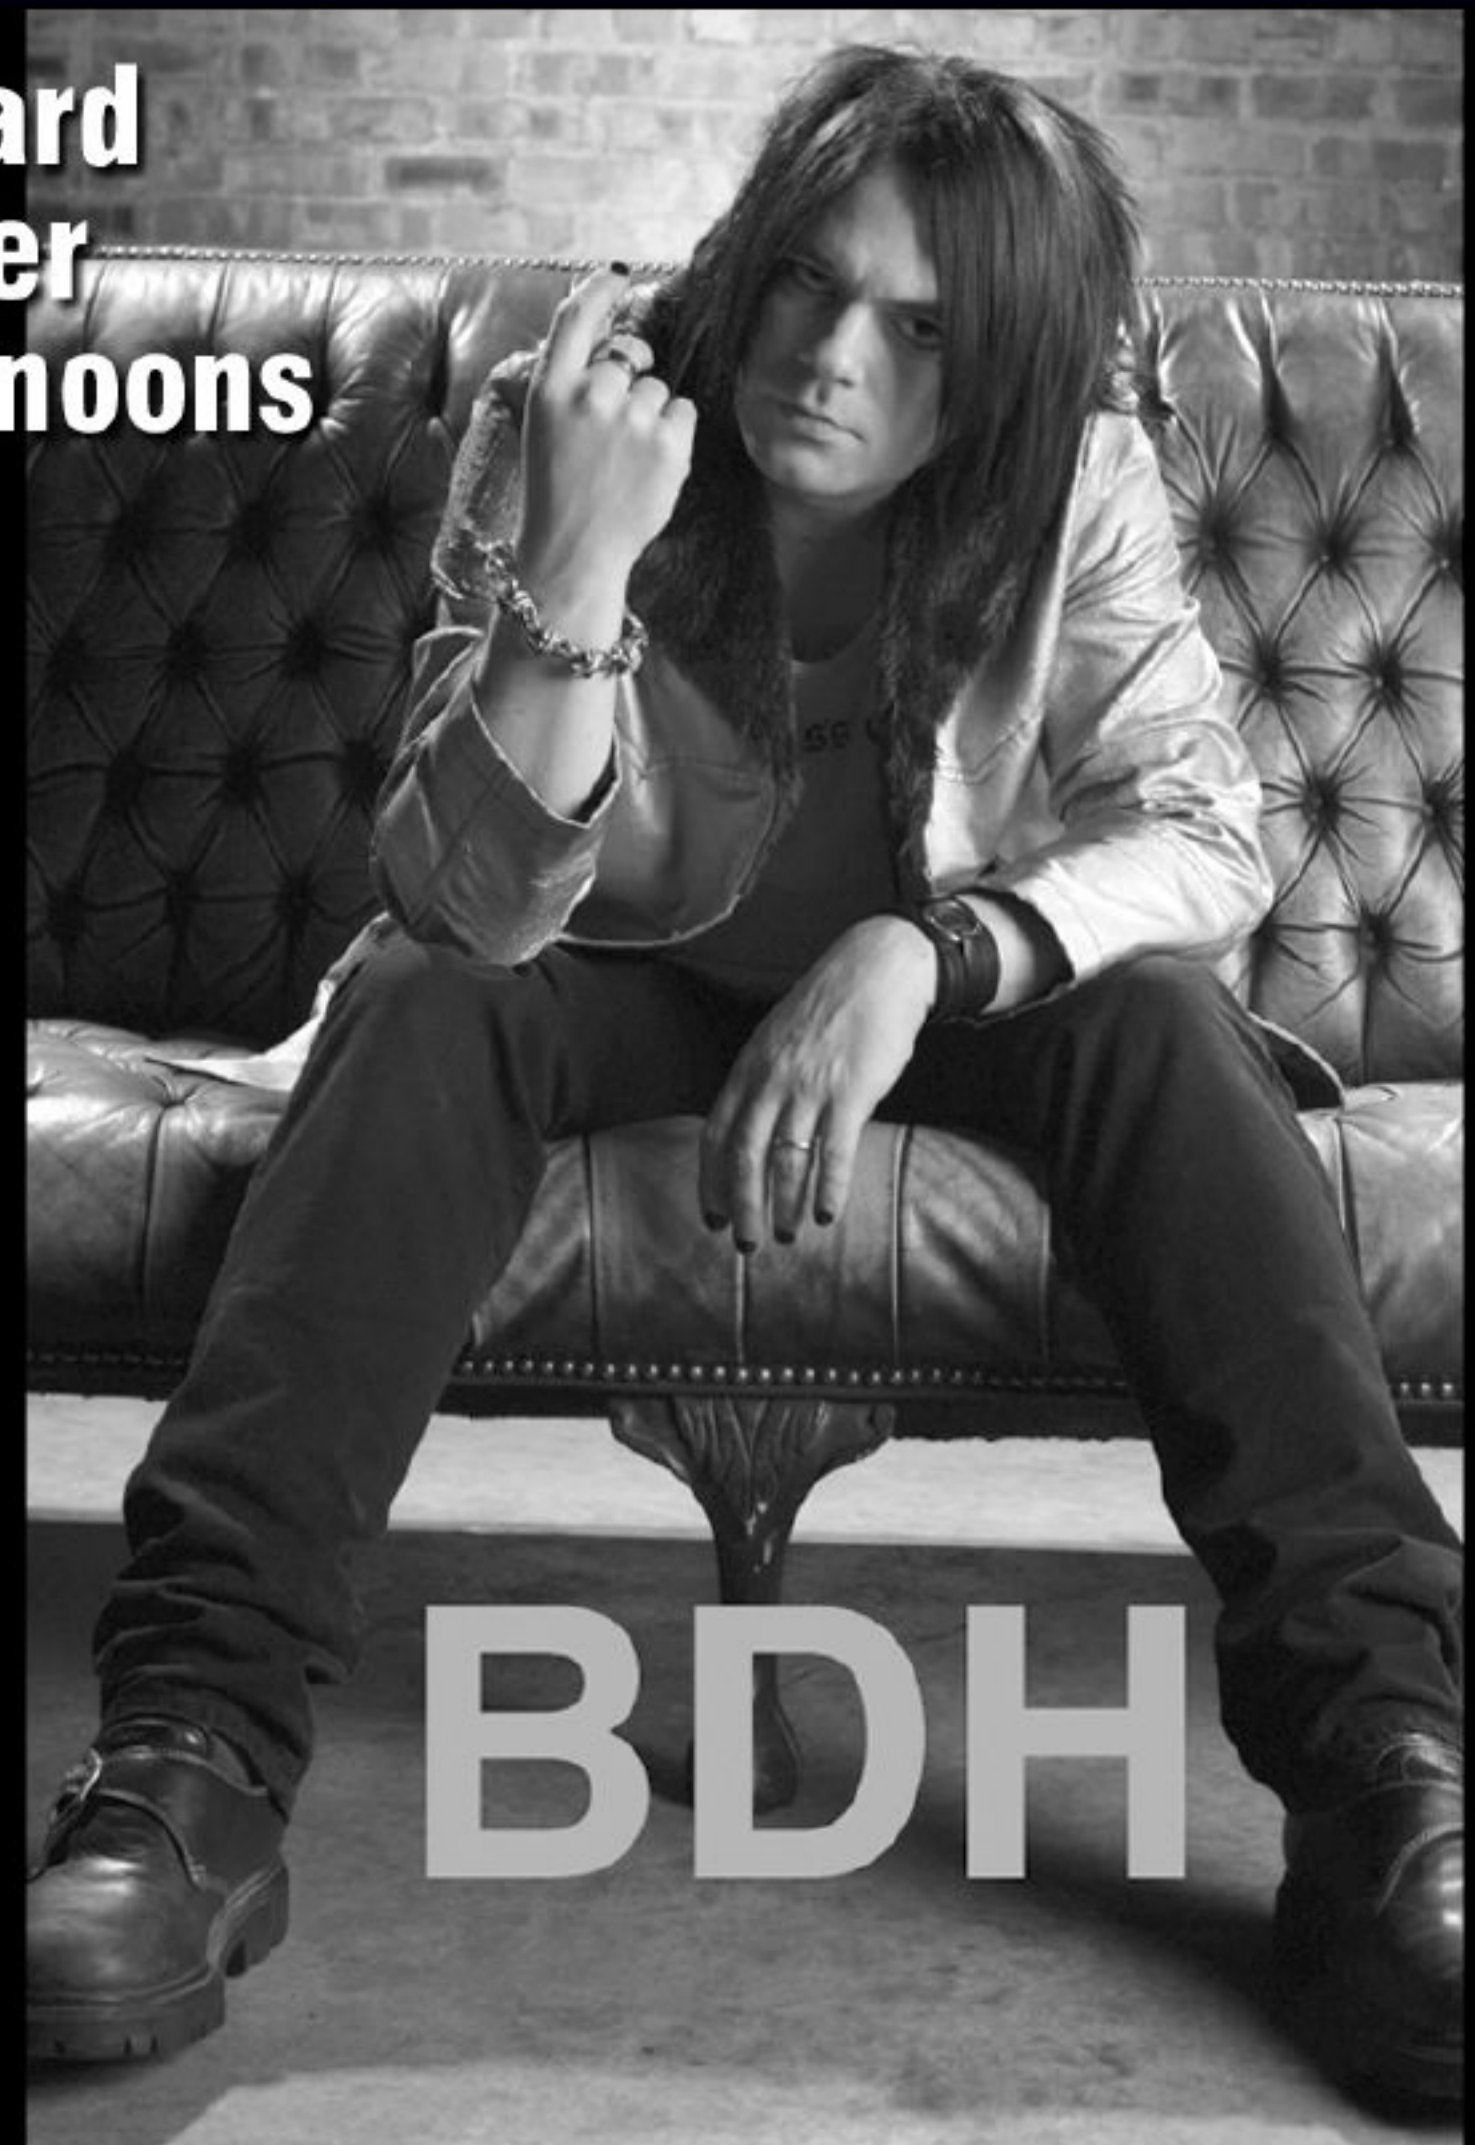

It might contain very memorable, entertaining, the craziest and the most bizarre adventures and collection of absurdities.

I give you an excerpt of THE FETISH GALLERY: SLEAZE GALLERY EDITION.

Cleveland metal heros Chimaira are back in the Big D this Sunday, playing at House of Blues. Through Adrenaline PR I was able to hook up this quick interview with Chris (Keyboards). -Gil Tha Thrill How's the tour going? You're near the end right?

We hit the half-way point on the Trivium tour. It's been pretty good thus far. Canada ruled!

Is "The Infection" your favorite release so far?

It's definitely my personal favorite. I think it holds the Chimaira integrity and stays completely fresh at the same time.

What influences went in to the writing process?

Everyone just kept an open mind and tried new things. Dudes listen to everything from Pink Floyd to NIN to Lil Wayne to Cannibal Corpse.

Does Chimaira live up the "Sex, Drugs and Rock n Roll" lifestyle on tour?

Not at all. We are the most boring suburban nerds ever.

Who is your favorite porn star? Jules Jordan, my idol.

Do you guys like going to Strip clubs? Whats your favorite club in Dallas?

I rarely enjoy going to strip clubs. It's not that I don't like the company of naked females, I just hate the shakedown. The last thing I'm interested in is a 4 min conversation which results in someone asking for $20. (Ladies, give a touring band a break. -Gil)

Screw guys moshing in the pit. What song of yours would you like to see the ladies strip down to?

Uhhhhh all of them?

Cleveland is known for producing some heavy hardcore and metal bands. Any new Cleveland bands you recommend your fans check out?

Ringworm and Soulless

Megadeth

w/ Machine Head, Suicide Silence and Arcanium

Wednesday, Dec. 2

The Palladium Ballroom,
1135 South Lamar, Dallas, TX

Dave Mustaine's Megadeth is back again to wreck havoc on Dallas and this time they have brought with them Oakland O.G. thrashers Machine Head fresh from their tour with Metallica. I'm definitely looking forward to seeing this show. Megadeth and Machine Head were both bands I listened to when I started added metal, especially bay area thrash metal to my punk and hardcore record collection in the late 80's and early 90's. Pre Machine Head band Violence was a special favorite of mine. During the whole nu-metal era Machine Head had a few bad releases but they are now back to their roots thrashing faster and harder than anyone else. I expect to see lots of white high tops and denim vest at this show. -Gil Tha Thrill

This Saturday is going to be a trip back in time to the days of Theatre Gallery/Prophet Bar at The (new) Prophet Bar, 2548 Elm St. in Deep Ellum).

For those of you not in the know, The Theatre Gallery was an influential live music venue, art gallery, and live theatre performance space in the Deep Ellum neighborhood of Dallas, Texas during the mid-to-late 1980's. The venue was important because of one thing: up until the time it opened, Dallas was a city where bad "copy" bands were the order of the day... TG changed all of that by offering a space for original music. Advanced tix are $10/$15 at the door. I will be there, most likely pimping merch for mi amigos in The Loco Gringos, so stop by and say "high," will ya? (See flier below for details and lineup.)

The Triggermen submitted a video for a contest that www.safeauto.com is having. It's killa:

AIN'T NOTHIN' BUT A G-STRING!

Driving to the mall. Finding a parking space. Walking what seems like 10 miles to the front door, only to have to push through throngs of people to get to a chain store.

Pick out a few off the shelf gifts, go to the checkout. Get rung through by a surly teenager, and go out to the car and go home.

That was the shopping scenario for most folks this holiday season, but NEVER FEAR! Viv is here to save your holiday blahs and get you into the right holiday spirit - the SEXY spirit!

You see - one of the biggest burlesque shows on the season is this coming Saturday, Dec. 5th, at Club Excuses in Deep Ellum. Called Gifts and Garters, it is the collective brainchild of Bewitching Burlesque and Through the Looking Glass Photography. They wanted a place to be able to watch the best burlesque around and to shop the best in local merchandise in time for the Holidays, and so this show was born. Gifts and Garters will feature the absolutely fantastic Perle Noire from New Orleans, who was recently crowned the Queen of the New Orleans Burlesque Festival, and the Jigglewatts consisting of Ruby Joule and Coco Letric of Austin. I will be debuting a new number as well! Other performers include Angi B. Lovely, Miss malicious, Scarlette Switches and Jai'L Bait of the Lollie

Bombs, Honey Cocoa Bordeaux, Erin Go Braughless, Rose Darling, Glam'Amour and newcomer Vinny Velour! There will also be amazing local vintage and modern ware from Tara to the T, Dakota Darling Designs, ...Laura, Darling (who makes awesome pasties by the way, I own a pair personally) Jupiter Moon 3 custom corsets (I'll be wearing a custom design from her myself!) and many other local lovelies who are glad to help you complete your holiday shopping and keep your dollars in our local economy. Show doors open at 6:30 pm, 1st burlesque show is at 7pm and this extravaganza will run until midnight! Hurry up and grab tickets at <http://giftsandgarters.eventbrite.com> and don't forget to bring an unwrapped new toy as well, we will be collecting them for Toys for Tots!

For you artsy guys and gals, Dr. Sketchy's Denton will be having another antiart modelling session on Dec. 13th, at Banter Cafe in Denton! This show features burlesque and boylesque, and great models and fun drawing contests! It is an experience not to forget! 10 bucks and your drawing supplies gets you in, door is at 6pm. BARKIN' OUT LOUD

by Pat "Two Dogs" Snow

Dallas Cowboys fans want Romo to QUIT talking like some champion who's already won major championships. They WANT him to START talking passionately about attacking December like it's important. That it has given them problems and they want to beat it dead like a water moccasin that's just snuck onto the fairway and is between you and your golf ball.

They want the Cowboys to attack December in a way that builds a fire in their guts that carries over into the playoffs.

The fans aren't wanting Romo to stand up and do game predictions, no. They want to see him, and the others, speak passionately about going after the games. C'mon, Tony, you're not a 40 year old Favre that just speaks softly at the podium. Show some damn life for the game, that's not too much to give 'em, is it?

Sports Illustrated is always conducting polls of this or that. A recent one done with NFL players showed that of all teams in both conferences the team the largest amount of players DID NOT want to play for was the Raiders. No surprise there. However, with players who'd been in the league for five years or less, the biggest percentage didn't want to play for Green Bay. Maybe that cheddar's a bit rotten up north, huh?

Do I like a good fight? You bet I do. Do I like any fights outside of boxing or mixed martial arts? Yeah, hockey's a great example. Do I like fights just between regular folk? Typically no, because they don't know what they're doing and it usually just turns out to be nothing.

Want a current example? Sure you do. Ok, you can find this with a little searching. The Ducks are playing the Lightning and Niedermayer scores the game winner in OT, he gets excited and tosses his stick over the glass into the stands so someone can have a souvenir. Well, that didn't quite happen. One fan grabbed a piece and another fan grabbed a piece and then the fight started to see who'd get the whole thing. For being among other people and in stadium seating, this wasn't all that bad.

Stupid, yeah, but funny. It may still be on YouTube.

You want one of the best reasons in the world why players are superstitious? How about the TV channel TNT and the Phoenix Suns. Last year they were 57-23 in games not on TNT, but were 0-16 when they played games aired by TNT. Who knows what kinda moon it takes to create something like that, but we've all had it happen, and we just hope to ride it out when it comes our way.

No need to be superstitious about the next change coming to a team, that's the Chicago Bears and the odds that Head Coach Lovie Smith and Offensive Coordinator Ron Turner will both be let go at season's end. That offensive debacle taking place is a tiny bit Cutler's fault, but the majority of that dirty dog lies directly on Smith and Turner.

Those guys backed bringing Jay in and they had absolutely no idea on how to set up an offense around that talent. Smith kept saying they were still going to "be the Bears", meaning heavy defense and strong running game. If that was truly to be the case, why the hell bring in a gunslinger?

How many of you out there resting on that bar stool and dippin the doughnut in the coffee really think the Titans are going to win out and make the playoffs at 10-6? If you do, you might want to think about getting some extra medical insurance, the kind that covers dementia. Maybe Dr Demento could've gotten away with making mental mud pies, but you supposedly normal folk oughta know better.

The Titans are currently 6-5. Their remaining games are: at Colts, next three at home against the Rams, Dolphins, and Chargers, and finish up the season at the Seahawks. If they win three of those ending at 9-7 will that be good enough to get a wild card?

It's possible. How? If they knock off Miami and neither the Steelers nor Ravens put on a rally, yeah, it's possible. How likely? I take 60/40 against. Could this be another of his famous Cinderella seasons where he comes in late and wins games, yeah, well, hell, that's what he's doin' now. But defenses are getting more info on him and things will be tightening up.

Has the Vince Young story been an interesting one? Depends on how you like your coffee, doesn't it?

Here's something else to gnaw on: the Jets pound the Panthers 17-6. The Jet's offense is subpar with its rookie QB, but Carolina's got an experienced QB, DelHomme. Of course most of Del's experience is throwing interceptions, but hey, at least he's completing them to somebody on the field.

This past off season Carolina gave DelHomme a five year contract extension, with a typical amount guaranteed, and they're on the hook for it now. Next year he'll make about $12 million, most of which is from the guaranteed pile, and this is money to a QB who's basically only had a fraction of his work be any good.

They don't have any kind of a backup QB they've been grooming to take over, and there's not anybody that's gonna trade away an up and comer, so they'll have to go via next draft. If Carolina's stupid they'll keep QB DelHomme and Head Coach Fox. If somebody up there finally frees some brain cells lose, they'll get rid of both.

Let's rehash some NFL week 12.

Aye, tis happy you are, smilin' away like the madcap Irishman, exultin' over yer Cowboys bein' atop the NFC East, actin' all along the flat smooth stone skippin' over the rough water. Well go ahead then, click your heels and have your laughs, you're deservin' of it all.

You've had your week of fun. You've had all the turkey and trimmings and getting' yourself stuffed like the goose itself. And you've played, oh my you've played. Maybe like me you went camping with friends and did a wee bit of howlin' at the moon, and at whatever might have chanced to walk or slink by. However you did it, it's time to put it in your back pocket because we got some work to do.

We got a whole nation full of naysayers out there that are pickin' stuffing out their teeth, rubbin' their stomachs and belchin' out how the 'Boys are gonna lose 'em all the rest of the way. I say it's time we get behind Dallas full force and give out some serious acid indigestion as an early Christmas present to the country. Let's do 'er.

What is Tony Romo's problem with interviews? This is a question I get repeatedly. It's NOT that he doesn't give them, it's what he's NOT saying.

Ok, so he's been talking with some top guys, like Aikman and Woods, and those sorts of fella's. And you know what they've been telling him: you have to work at improving each practice and game, and that if you do this, the wins will come along with it. Yeah, yeah, yeah, that's true and has to be done, but it's NOT what people are wanting to hear.

And hash is what some of that was plated out to us over the long weekend. The Giants get plastered 26-6, the Bills roast Miami 31-14, and the Niners pound the Jags 20-3. I know that "allegedly" on any given Sunday a loser can win and a winner can lose, but this is ridiculous.

You are NOT gonna get me to say anything great about the Titans, at least not yet. Why? Because they're STILL running a vanilla offense while Young picks it up. Yeah, the teams gaining confidence and that's a hell'uva wild card to trump a season with, but vanilla don't cut it in the playoffs, or against teams battling for the playoffs.

NFL Week 13

Thursday night 8:30 NFL channel

Jet's (5-6, road 2-3) at Bills (4-7, home 2-3). Why don't you call this one the upset pick of the week and take the Bills.

Sunday noon games

There's always gonna be garbage games, so let's get this up to the curb: Buc's (1-10, road 0-5) at Panthers (4-7, home 2-3), Raiders (3-8, road 1-4) at Steelers (6-5, home 4-1), Rams (1-10, road 1-4) at Bears (4-7, home 3-2), Saints (10-0) at Redskins (3-8, home 3-2), Bronco's (7-4, road 3-2) at Chiefs (3-8, home 1-4), and the Lions (2-9, road 0-5) at Bengals (8-3, home 4-2). Not an upset in the bunch.

Fighting for pride 'cause not much else is left: Texans (5-6, road 3-2) at Jags (6-5, home 4-1).

Might possibly get a couple of presents out of these: Patriots (7-3, road 1-3) at Dolphins (5-6, home 3-2), and Eagles (7-4, road 3-2) at Falcons (6-5, home 5-0). Believe it or not, both Miami and Atlanta could still be in the wild card hunt with wins.

3 o'clock games

Let's line up for stinky, winky, and blinky: Chargers (8-3, road 4-1) at Browns (1-10), Niners (5-6, road 1-4) at Seahawks (4-7, home 3-2), and Cowboys (8-3, road 3-2) at Giants (6-5, home 3-2). The Browns couldn't pop a balloon at a kid's party, the 49ers got hit with major injuries, and Eli Manning's got a seriously bad foot.

8:30 game

Vikings (10-1, road 4-1) at Cardinals (7-4, home 3-2). Arizona's just doesn't have a team without Warner at the controls. Hint: Leinart is not an NFL QB.

Monday Night Football

Ravens (6-5, road 2-3) at Packers (7-4, home 4-2). This could be a really good game, maybe not like last week's Ravens and Steelers field party, but there'll be good stuff in this piñata, too!!

Readers Response:

Two Dogs:

What's your take on the inside of the Giants locker room? Those guys are acting all arrogant and everything, like this is no big deal, but their record says otherwise. Can they really pull this out?

*The Stake
Denton*

Stake:

Picture this: wily coyote is chasing the road runner. RR stops just before the edge of the cliff but WC has no chance and goes over it. Suddenly he stops, in mid air, and has this incredulous expression on his face. A look that say's, oh man, I can't go back, I can't correct this, I'm not just in deep do do I'm fixin' to crash and burn. That moment of realization has hit us all, and that's what's now deeply imprinted on the faces of the New York Giants. They're at 6-5, losers of four of their last five, and it would take the Cowboys and the Eagles both to lose most of their remaining games and NY winning out for them to have a chance. That chance is worse than winning the lotto.

TD

Two Dogs:

I've been a big fan of your column since you started, but the one thing that bugs me is that you won't report on what's happening in athlete's lives, like what just happened with Tiger Woods. Tiger's story is major and you're just ignoring it. He should be talking with the media and you should make sure about it.

*Milton
Dallas*

Milton:

Even if Woods was cheating on his wife with a vampire and at a critical blood sucking moment hit a tree, I couldn't care less. As far as "making" Woods speak out, just what do you suggest I do, crash one of his parties by skydiving nude into it and refusing to leave until he gives me an exclusive? Hey, wait a minute, that just might work!! If YOU think this story is so almighty worth it, then YOU make him tell it. I'll repeat this, in my opinion athletes are open to the public where the sport is concerned, otherwise their private lives are just that, unless they do something that directly involves sporting, or something of a major criminal action. Leave it be, Miltie, it ain't worth it.

TD

Two Dogs:

What's the deal with the NFL and concussions? I want the players to be treated right, but the league usually goes overboard on things, like how the QB is so protected now he doesn't get his uniform dirty during games.

Dwaine

Dwaine:

It used to be that determining if a player who had suffered a brain concussion was ready to go back on the field was handled by team doctors. The league now requires that teams consult independent neurologists before reassigning to active status. This would be more than just sending over team notes, the player would have to be seen as well. The problem doesn't rest solely on the teams for sending players back in. Professional sports are loaded with young studs who are quite willing to go back into games bleeding to death just to show how tough they are. When you're young, rich, a stud on the field, you just don't believe anything bad is going to happen to you. Perhaps another way to reach players would be to drag around those guys who've got broken bodies and broken minds, maybe that'd earn at least a tad more prudence.

TD

Two Dogs:

I don't know why you support Cutler, the guy was a baby in Denver and he's a bum for the Bears.

*Tom
Dallas*

Tom:

Probably because I know a hell of a lot more about football than you do.

TD

Two Dogs:

Don't you agree that McEnroe writing that book about his life and finally speaking about how his father forced him to play tennis and how he did the drugs and all was uplifting and spoke to our society and how many of our kids are forced to play sports they don't necessarily want to?

*Rhonda
Dallas*

Rhonda:

I didn't read it, don't plan on reading it, and won't talk to anybody about it. I chose the comics over reading it. I'd choose working in the yard over it and I hate doin' that. It sounds like your kids are successful at hopscotch and tiddlywinks, maybe you've taught them how to sew, too? You might also want to take some adult night courses in writing, that was a record sentence you strung together.

Car Cam Dually Records Both The Wreck Outside and Your Screaming Face Inside

If you were Tiger Woods, the Car Cam Dually would have captured you slamming into a tree and your wife smashing the windows with a golf club, while simultaneously recording how you managed to injure your face.

Of course, it would have also proven whether or not your wife was using the golf club on your face before the incident. The point is that, unlike most vehicle accident cameras, the Car Cam Dually offers a more complete picture of how an accident went down, making it easier to prove who was at fault and what kind of injuries were sustained. To that end, the device also keeps track of your GPS location and the g-force of the impact.

I know, it's about four days too late for these handy wind-up walking salt and pepper shakers to make Thanksgiving dinner more entertaining, but there's always Christmas dinner less than a month away. Available soon from SUCK UK (for about $33) and designed by Marc Owens, these robots are yet another sign that automatons are slowly but steadily taking over all of mankind's most menial tasks. And I for one welcome our mashed potato seasoning overlords.

2010 Norton Commando 961 Models

Following up on the success of the Commando 961SE, which sold out on pre-orders before the limited run of 200 units began production, Norton introduced two variations, the standard version Commander 961 Sport and the Commander 961 Café Racer.

Both models use the same engine and chassis as the 961SE. The air-cooled 961cc parallel twin engine with push-rod valve actuation has a claimed power output of 78.9hp at 6,500 rpm and 66.4 ft-lb. of torque at 5,200 rpm. Suspension is provided by adjustable Ohlins shocks while Brembo brakes provide stopping power.

Gone are the 961SE's carbon fiber components. The Commando 961 Café Racer includes a fly screen, clip-on handlebars and sports exhaust, while the Sport has chromed tubular steel handlebars.

The Norton Commando 961 Café Racer and Sport are available in four color combinations: black and gold, red and gold, yellow and black, and silver, red and black. The Café Racer retails for $22,200 while the Sport retails for US$19,730. South Bay Norton of Lomita, Calif., has secured exclusive distribution rights in the United States.

IT'S HARD TO FIND A GOOD DONKEY SHOW

The Weekly Adventures Of OJ Tobias

Bill e-mailed me last fking week with a new fking list of rules for my fking column. Which is bullshit because all I can think about writing is what color napkin I prefer under my cocktail. This is the first e-mail I received from Bill the second week I submitted a column. That's when I realized Bill was a dick. Just read the shit he wrote and you will know he's had it out for me since day one.

Hey OJ,

Just wanted to say I loved the column. It was real funny. The whole application thing, just killed me. Can't wait to read the next one.

Gil Russell

Since I am a god damn genius and everyone that reads my shit is as well, then you can read between the line of Bill's first letter. For you stupid people, this is what he said.

Hey OJ,

I hate you.

Gil Russell

What a pompous ass. It is a good thing that Colleen is in love with me. If she wasn't, then you would not be able to read my wise thoughts.

Bill could not even sign the shit. He had that Gil dude do it. I feel sorry for that Gil dude. He must put up with a lot of shit from Bill.

This is the e-mail I got last week.

Hey OJ,

Great work man, everyone here loves your work. Ever thought about writing a book? Just wanted to drop you a line. I know I have not hit you up in a while.

Gil Russell

Can you believe this prick? After all my hard work, he is shutting me down.

According to that e-mail I can no longer talk about Peep-N-Toms that is located at 2925 East Abrams, 817-640-7505, because I work there. It seems he does not care about the $2.50 drinks on Tuesdays and Wednesday or the fact that I got more girls than an Amazon tribe. (Amazons are HOT!) No, he just wants to shut me up. Well, no luck there pal.

My only problem now is getting the word out. If only I had some medium to communicate with all my fans. I think I will ask my friends on www.myspace.com/ohtobias or maybe my friends on www.facebook.com/ohtobias how to reach out to people. I will definitely twitter them from my Ohtobias account.

But if push comes to shove I may have to e-mail them from Ohtobias@hotmail.com to let them know that Bill hates me.

I am glad I did not tell him about my new mix tape that is coming out soon!!!

So I told Colleen about it and gave her the scoop:

Titled:

"OJ's Christmas Music for Killas!" Genre: Mostly Gangsta shit!

Price: Super Affordable.....buy two, Bitch!

My new mix tape is Definition DJ approved, endorsed and it's got they motherfkin STANK on it.

Readers,

This is Your Rock Slut 4ever here. I did a little research on OJ's "mix tape." The Definition DJ's are easy to find at www.myspace.com/definitiondjs and here is what a few of them said about OJ and his product:

Definition DJ Darkness said, "OJ Simpson has a mix tape?" He then hung up on me after I said, "OJ Tobias."

Definition DJ Pappa Ron hung up the phone as soon as I put the "O" and the "J" out of my mouth.

Definition DJ Tuss said, "That bitch owes me money! Is he with you now? Where the fk are you?!"

Definition DJ Jack Fraust said, "Who the fk is OJ?"

I would also like to reiterate that I am not nor have I ever been in love with OJ and never will be. I edit his column because I care about how things read in the paper.

Our publisher Ali is having another Xmas party this year, this time at her house.

I know where all the knives are, OJ. Merry Christmas. Jackass!

Lady Gaga Prefers Sex With Men

Lady Gaga prefers sex with men - because they have something she really "appreciates".

The 'Bad Romance' singer is openly bisexual and says she is able to be open in the bedroom because she can make a distinction between love and sex.

She is quoted by web-site Jetzt.de as saying: "In love there are no rules or boundaries. But I separate love and sex. I just love the male sexuality. Men have something that I miss but that I really appreciate."

Lady Gaga - who is renowned for flesh-flashing outfits - has always been adventurous when it comes to sex and showing off her body

John Mayer: 'I Should Be Having Sex With More Girls'

John Mayer thinks he should be having sex with more girls.

The American musician - who has dated a string of famous beauties including Jennifer Love Hewitt, Jessica Simpson and most recently former 'Friends' star Jennifer Aniston - is tired of being labeled a womanizer because it makes him feel guilty about dating.

He said: "I should be having sex with more girls. It's crazy to me that in my head being 32 and dating women is going to get me into trouble."

The 'Gravity' singer - who is as well known for his relationships as his music - stops himself from going out with more girls because of the constant public interest in his love life.

He said in an interview with the New York Times newspaper: "I can't even explain to you how terrible that feels, that I equate dating a woman with punishment, shame, guilt, disappointment, reproach, reprimand, persecution. It's a nightmare."

The musician has previously boasted about his sexual conquests online.

He once wrote on Twitter that he'd "slept" with nine science-fiction fans at a comic book convention and that he persuaded "dozens" of women to leave lipstick marks on his face so the paparazzi would think he had several girlfriends.

Malaysian Sex Workers Using Porn Films To Rob 'Distracted' Clients

A group of Malaysian sex workers are reportedly using pornographic movies to distract clients before robbing them off their belongings.

The transsexuals in Chow Kit allegedly seduce customers while another sex worker nicked valuables belonging to the victim.

In an incident, reported by Harian Metro, a client called Ping, 33, was asked to choose an explicit film as a "warm-up", reports the Star Online.

The chef later realised his handphone was missing from the pocket and also heard loud noises that sounded like a fight outside the room.

He said: "I was even more surprised to find that my wallet, which was originally in my pocket, was moved to the top of the television set. Some RM400 was also gone."

Ping demanded the return of his valuables and was told it was the doing of a friend of the worker.

Green Politician Says Oral Sex Is Part Of Being Swedish

A Green Party politician has declared that part of being Swedish is the opportunity to swing both ways during the course of a single day in the interests of free speech.

Sofia Bothorp delivered that could well be the Swedish tourist board's new slogan during a local council debate on Swedishness.

According to The Local, Bothorp declared that part of being Swedish is being able to "lick pussy in the morning and suck cock in the evening if you want to".

While this may appear to be a rather narrowly fixed definition of Swedishness, Bothorp was in fact referring to the country's proud tradition of freedom of expression.

The remarks, inevitably were videoed and found their way onto YouTube. Which is ironic as the site does not look kindly on showing pussy licking or cock sucking - once it's been made aware of either.

Bothorp was forced into immediate explanation mode, saying that she was seeking to show that, contrary to the views of the country's far right, Sweden is not a culturally homogeneous nation, and needed to uphold its traditions of free speech and tolerance.

Australian Man Wasn't Flashing; He Was Airing His Penis Out

An Australian man who was arrested for indecent exposure told a court yesterday that he was simply airing his penis out and didn't know anyone else was around.

According to The Border Mail, 22-year old Anthony Hadfield was sitting on a bench in the botanical gardens in the city of Albury. Two teenaged female photographers, interested in a nearby pond, spotted Mr. Hadfield just a few meters away with his erect penis out.

The girls quickly went to a different part of the park, but someone else who saw the incident called the police. When questioned, Hadfield told officers that he hadn't realized anyone else was around. He said he had a rash on his penis and just wanted to air it out.

Hadfield has to pay a fine of $250 (about $230 US dollars) for willful and obscene exposure. Presiding magistrate Gordon Lerve said he didn't believe the rash story. "He is in denial, there is an issue," the judge said. Two other charges were dropped on a technicality. This was his first offense.

All About Porn: Releases, News and Stars!

Snoop Dogg: 'I Revolutionised Porn'

Snoop Dogg has claimed that he revolutionised the pornography industry. The gangsta rapper directed and presented 2001's Snoop Dogg's Doggystyle, which mixed hardcore pornography and hip-hop, as well as the following year's Snoop Dogg's Hustlaz: Diary Of A Pimp.

Snoop told The Stool Pigeon: "I made a few. I know everybody like it, but everybody be afraid and 'shamed."

"So I was like, 'Fk it, I'm gonna put together a couple porno movies. I'm gonna direct and add a different flavour to the porno world just to change the game."

He added: "And I did. I won four AVN [Adult Video News] awards, sold the most DVDs ever in porno, brought a new style of shooting, brought music to the porno world... I changed the whole game and they thankful for me."

"They want me to do more, but I'm like, 'I'm cool, that was a phase for me and I don't wanna do it no more'. I had a wife and kids when I did it, that didn't stop nothin'. I just didn't wanna do it no more."

David Aaron Clark, 1960-2009

Veteran adult director David Aaron Clark passed away of a pulmonary embolism at around 4 pm this afternoon at Good Samaritan Hospital in downtown Los Angeles. He was 49.

Clark's untimely demise came just three days after he received multiple nominations in the 2010 AVN Awards race for his latest epic, Pure, which also happened to be his very first project for Evil Angel. Among the noms Pure picked up were: Best Actor (Keni Styles), Best Actress (Asa Akira), Best Supporting Actor (Jake Malone), Best Couples Sex Scene, Best Music Soundtrack, Best Special Effects, Best Screenplay, Best Director – Feature and Best Video Feature.

He came to Los Angeles in 1998 and got his start directing XXX movies at Cream Studios. He soon established a trademark for himself of shooting only Asian women, often with a bent toward the fetishistic. He won the AVN Award for Best Screenplay – Video in 2002 for Brad Armstrong's Euphoria (Wicked Pictures), followed in 2004 by Best Ethnic-Themed Release – Asian for Asia Noir 2 (Video Team/Metro).

Featuring a team of scantily clad, sexed up supermen and women, "Power Girls" offers the geekery (and cheesy effects) of your favorite comic books, mixed with the hardcore sexy (and cheesy effects) of your favorite porn. Really, people—could you ask for much more? <http://www.televisionx.com>

Porn App Store Lands on Android Phones

Where there is no app for that on the iPhone, there now is for porn on the competing Android mobile operating system. A Seattle-based company named MiKandi (pronounced "my candy") has released an app store specifically geared towards porn. The application attempts to create a red light district for adult Android apps allowing adult content providers to set up shop within a MiKandi app.

Boasting only one previous app (an app called Dildroid), MiKandi's emergence brings with it game-changing potential for smut peddlers on smartphones. In June 2009 the iPhone app called Hottest Girls snuck by Apple's notoriously fickle approval process and saw the light of day for a very brief period of time before Apple banned it.

"[MiKandi LLC] wanted to find a niche that was not currently being served and adult applications were at the top of the list," Jennifer McEwen, one of the company's founders, told Good Gear Guide. "There are no other adult app stores out there to meet this need of users and developers. So we entered the market with MiKandi to provide value to the mobile application ecosystem."

The founders promise little to no censorship when it comes to "controversial" apps, except in cases when the law is being broken.

The developer kit is currently invite-only, but MiKandi plans on an e-mail marketing campaign to get the word out. MiKandi representatives say it has plans to port its app to BlackBerry and Windows Mobile devices as well as Java-compatible mobile phones in early 2010.

Black And White Sex Sampler

Adam & Eve

Well, I think the title pretty much tells you what you're getting here, but unlike most interracial releases of all black guy and a white girl scenes you also get two white guy/black girl scenes. That's something I like watching. I'm prone to catching jungle fever. It's sad that there isn't more porn marketed to this crowd. I'm sure there are customers for it. Actually, this isn't all black and white. There are a couple of hispanic lovelies, but most of the ladies are white with blonde hair.

The best things about these samplers are the price and the length. This retails for around $20 and you get fours of sex. No filler.

While I have seen a few of the scenes on here already on previously reviewed DVD's, most of them are pretty new to me. My favorite star on this is the curvy Penna Piererra, but especially on enjoyed seeing the girl/girl scene with Jaslin Diaz and Maire McCray. 3 out 5. -Gil

While the choices are endless as to what to buy for the person who doesn't belong to an AA group, we here at Metro ANE admit to our love of the buzz, holiday or not. And we've noticed there has been a recent rash of celebrities jumping on the booze-branding bandwagon, so we thought we would give you some potential gift ideas for your friends and relatives who imbibe... Or hey, maybe you ought to say "Scrooge 'em!" and just get some for yourself! Cheaper than a psychiatrist, for sure!

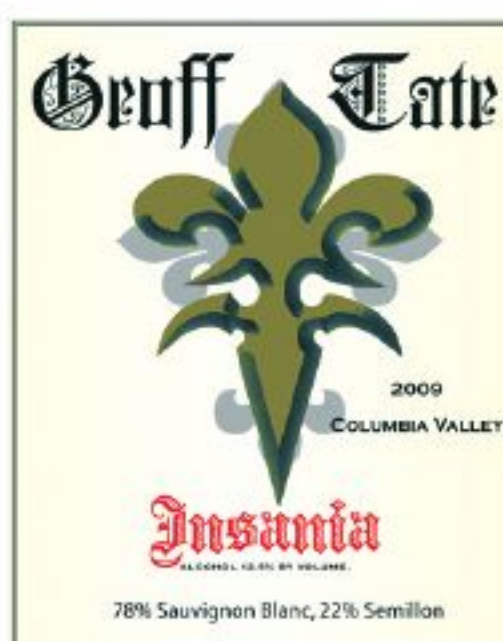

MANSINTHE by Marilyn Manson:

We bought this as a birthday gift for Russell. He liked it, a lot. Made from wormwood and all the real absinthe like back in the olden days, it's received rave reviews. Available through www.tempusfugitspirits.com (or get the info as to where in Texas you can find it). Follow in the footsteps of the famous dead, including Poe, Hemingway, Picasso... who knows what you'll come up with when you get wasted out of your mind on this stuff!

LIMONCELLO by Danny DeVito:

Fans of Taxi and It's Always Sunny in Philadelphia will enjoy this lovely Italian liqueur. It comes with a nice ceramic decanter... fancy! And organics fans will be pleased to know it's all natural. You can use it as a cocktail (sip it- fantastic!) or in recipes... it's delish! www.dannyslimoncello.com

INSANIA WINE by Geoff Tate of Queensryche:

Metal heads drink wine? I do, and even though I am not a Queensryche fan, maybe I will be more accepting after drinking a couple bottles of this. Tate's version of this in the red category flew out the winery and store doors so the white is highly anticipated. But guess what? Three Rivers Winery is located in Walla Walla, WA and they can't ship to Texas. Fans of Tate/Queensryche/wine can make advance plans to attend the initial tasting and launch of the new blend will take place at the Snoqualmie Casino in Snoqualmie, Washington on Thursday, February 4th and Friday, February 5th, 2010 in conjunction with Queensryche's forthcoming performances of the highly anticipated "Queensryche Cabaret."

CRYSTAL HEAD VODKA by Dan Aykroyd: gThousands of years ago, thirteen crystal heads were scattered across the earth - and they are greater and more powerful than anything we have the ability to manufacture today. Their workmanship is perfect: they contain no tool marks and have been cut against the natural axis of the crystal, defying the laws of physics. Some say they are artifacts from the lost civilization of Atlantis, some say they date back to the Mayans, still others say they were created by a higher intelligence. Brought together, the Crystal Heads are said to contain vast knowledge and enlightenment capable of unlocking our most enigmatic ancient mysteries. Alone, each is believed to house radiant psychic energy, which has magical powers and healing properties. This is according to www.crystalheadvodka.com website, but we know better. The bottom line is, this is VODKA and you buy it in a kick-ass SKULL (I've seen them in red as well as the clear). Blahblahblah, Aykroyd... hand over that bottle and save the mystical shit for later.

CABO WABO

by Sammy Hagar: Drink

some of this and chances are you won't be able to drive 55, either! Around since 1996. Cabo Wabo Tequila is handcrafted from 100% blue weber agave grown in the lowlands of the Mexican state of Jalisco and then double-distilled in small batches and matured in American oak. You will be partying like a rock star... just don't try to sing the David Lee Roth Van Halen covers at karaoke, please. www.cabowabo.com

ED HARDY VODKA:

Tattoos, art, clothes, and now vodka... what can Hardy do to top this? Check out how gorgeous the bottle is... wonder how many ink fans are going to drink this and then want the art on the bottle sleeved on their forearms? www.edhardyvodka.com

REPUBLIC TEQUILAS: Ultra-premium 100% blue agave, certified organic tequila. For proud drunken Texans, this gift can't miss with it's State of Texas shaped bottle. Made by the interesting combination of Tom Knall, a Texas cowboy, and Ken McKenzie, a Scottish tequila expert. NEWT'S NOOK BEGINS HELPING TEXAS DOGS

CELINA, Texas — Newt's Nook is open for business.

The heated, air-conditioned facility at the Animal Guardians sanctuary, named for former U.S. House Speaker Newt Gingrich, provides a safe, healthy environment for injured rescue dogs, particularly pit bulls, to recuperate until they are adopted.

"We're thrilled to help such a worthy project," said Dawn Rizos, owner of The Lodge gentlemen's club in Dallas, who funded the shelter after Gingrich rejected her donation to his political organization. "I wish Newt were here to see these wonderful dogs and know that we're giving them a chance for happier lives."

Just in time for Thanksgiving, Lodge and Animal Guardians staffers teamed up for a dedication ceremony, hanging a large "Newt's Nook" sign on the building and welcoming dogs to the new facility. The sign, created by Lodge bartender Bryan Calloway, features a caricature of a smiling Gingrich and a friendly, content pit bull.

"We were going to throw a bigger party," Rizos explained, "but we decided to devote the resources to this great cause instead."

She announced that The Lodge would donate an additional $100 to Animal Guardians for every dog adopted through Valentine's Day 2010, and give each adopter a gift certificate to The Lodge or Stratos Global Greek Taverna, a popular Dallas restaurant.

The idea for the shelter stemmed from an Entrepreneur of the Year Award that Gingrich bestowed on Rizos, then rescinded.

Lodge VIP Manager Sunny Hunter poses with Animal Guardians rescue dogs outside the new Newt's Nook rescue building.

In September Gingrich's organization, American Solutions for Winning the Future, invited Rizos to receive the honor from him at a private dinner in Washington on October 7. A week before the dinner, the organization said there had been a mix-up and told Rizos not to attend.

The Lodge, the country's best-known and most-honored gentlemen's club, helps hundreds of people support their families and further their educations, while setting industry standards for beauty, elegance and integrity.

"So we weren't surprised to get the award, and we were disappointed to suddenly be rejected," Rizos said. "But instead of holding a grudge, we decided to make something positive out of his bad manners."

When Gingrich returned the $5,000 donation that was required to attend the dinner, Rizos redirected the money to Animal Guardians, a home for rescue dogs 40 miles north of downtown Dallas.

"I can't tell you how much this new building means to us," said Animal Guardians Director Annette Lambert, who cares for more than 100 dogs at the sanctuary. "Dawn didn't deserve to be treated like that, but this will do so much for these loving dogs until we find them good homes."

Police: Dad Leaves Boy And Goes Into Strip Club

A man was arrested after police said he left his 5-year-old son in a tractor-trailer while he ducked into an Indianapolis strip club to drink.

The 39-year-old was arrested at 1:15 a.m. Tuesday on child neglect and public intoxication charges after calling police to report his truck stolen and his child missing. Police said the man was too drunk to remember where he had parked.

They found the boy inside watching cartoons on a television inside the cab. The keys were in the ignition, and the doors were unlocked.

Police said the suspect put his son in jeopardy by leaving him exposed in a high crime area.

The man was taken to the Marion County jail, where his wife picked up him and the child.

Did I Ever Tell You The One About... And other strange oddities of the world

Church Robber: 'Sorry But I'm Poor'

Someone made off with loot from a Georgia church but also left behind an apology. A note scrawled on the wall said: "Sorry but I'm poor. Forgive me Lord." The Rev. Roger Davis tells WSB-TV that expensive equipment including microphones and a laptop containing important records were stolen over the weekend from Berean Baptist Church. The robber broke locks and the church's safe, but it was empty.

It was the fourth time the church in Ellenwood, southeast of Atlanta, has been robbed in two years.

Davis joked he's considering putting up a note of his own telling potential robbers to call him instead and the church will take up a collection for them.

Deputies Use Backhoe To Find Drugs In Septic Tank

Flushed evidence doesn't go far if your toilet's on a septic system. DeSoto Parish sheriff's Lt. Toni Joe Morris said Tuesday that deputies brought in a backhoe when drug agents raided a home and business and met the owner coming out of a bathroom.

He said a bag of methamphetamine and needles was floating on the sewage. Deputies booked a 49-year-old man on Friday with possessing methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia, as well as possessing a firearm with drugs present.

Man Tied 15 Lizards To Chest At Airport

Federal officials say they arrested a man who strapped 15 live lizards to his chest to get through customs at Los Angeles International Airport.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Friday that 40-year-old Michael Plank of Lomita, Calif., was returning from Australia when U.S. Customs agents found 11 skinks, two geckos and two monitor lizards fastened to his body Tuesday.

Authorities say the lizards' value totals more than $8,500. All Australian reptiles are strictly regulated and Plank did not have a permit for them.

Woman Smuggled Drugs To Inmate With Kiss

A western Pennsylvania woman has been ordered to stand trial on charges she passed a drug-filled balloon to a state prison inmate while kissing him. State police said guards at the State Correctional Institution-Mercer became suspicious when an inmate appeared to swallow something after a prolonged kiss with a visitor on Oct. 19.

When the inmate wouldn't tell guards what he swallowed, they put him in a cell where they could monitor his bathroom visits and found a balloon filled with marijuana three days later.

Police charged the inmate, and the woman with conspiracy to smuggle contraband and other charges. Both are 41 years old.

Woman Sees Jesus On Her Iron

A Massachusetts woman who recently separated from her husband and had her hours cut at work says an image of Jesus Christ she sees on her iron has reassured her that "life is going to be good."

Mary Jo Coady first noticed the image Sunday when she walked into her daughter's room.

The brownish residue on the bottom of the iron looks like the face of a man with long hair.

The 44-year-old Coady was raised Catholic. She and her two college-age daughters agree that the image looks like Jesus and is proof that "he's listening."

Coady tells The Eagle-Tribune she hopes her story will inspire others during the holidays. She says she plans to keep the iron in a closet and buy a new one.

LA Stylist Learns Modern Meaning Of 'Pay Phone'

When a Los Angeles hairstylist accepted a collect call from a customer, she had no idea it would run more than $45. And no idea that's just what collect calls from pay phones cost in the mobile age.

Barbara James gladly accepted the call from 84-year-old client Pat Devine, who said she was running late and called from a pay phone because her cell phone had died.

James' bill from Network Communications International showed about $37 for the quick call, about $5 in regulatory fees and taxes, and about $3 for a "billing cost recovery fee."

Federal Communications Commission spokeswoman Rosemary Kimball says collect calls are largely unregulated since most major companies left the business.

Pig Farts Spark Australia Gas Scare

A flatulent pig sparked a gas emergency in southern Australia when a farmer mistook its odours for a leaking pipe, according to officials.

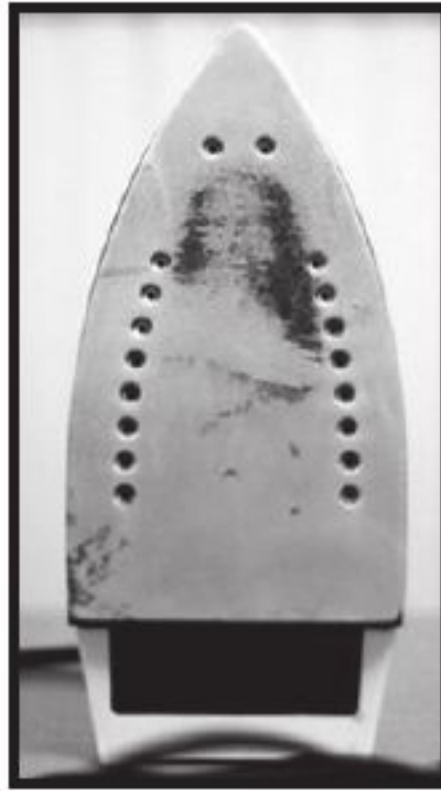

Fifteen firefighters and two trucks were called to a property at Axedale in central Victoria state after reports of a gas leak, the Country Fire Service said.

"When we got there, as we drove up the driveway, there was this huge sow, about a 120-odd kilo (265-pound) sow, and it was very obvious where the gas was coming from," said fire captain Peter Harkins.

"We could not only smell it, but we heard it and it was quite funny."

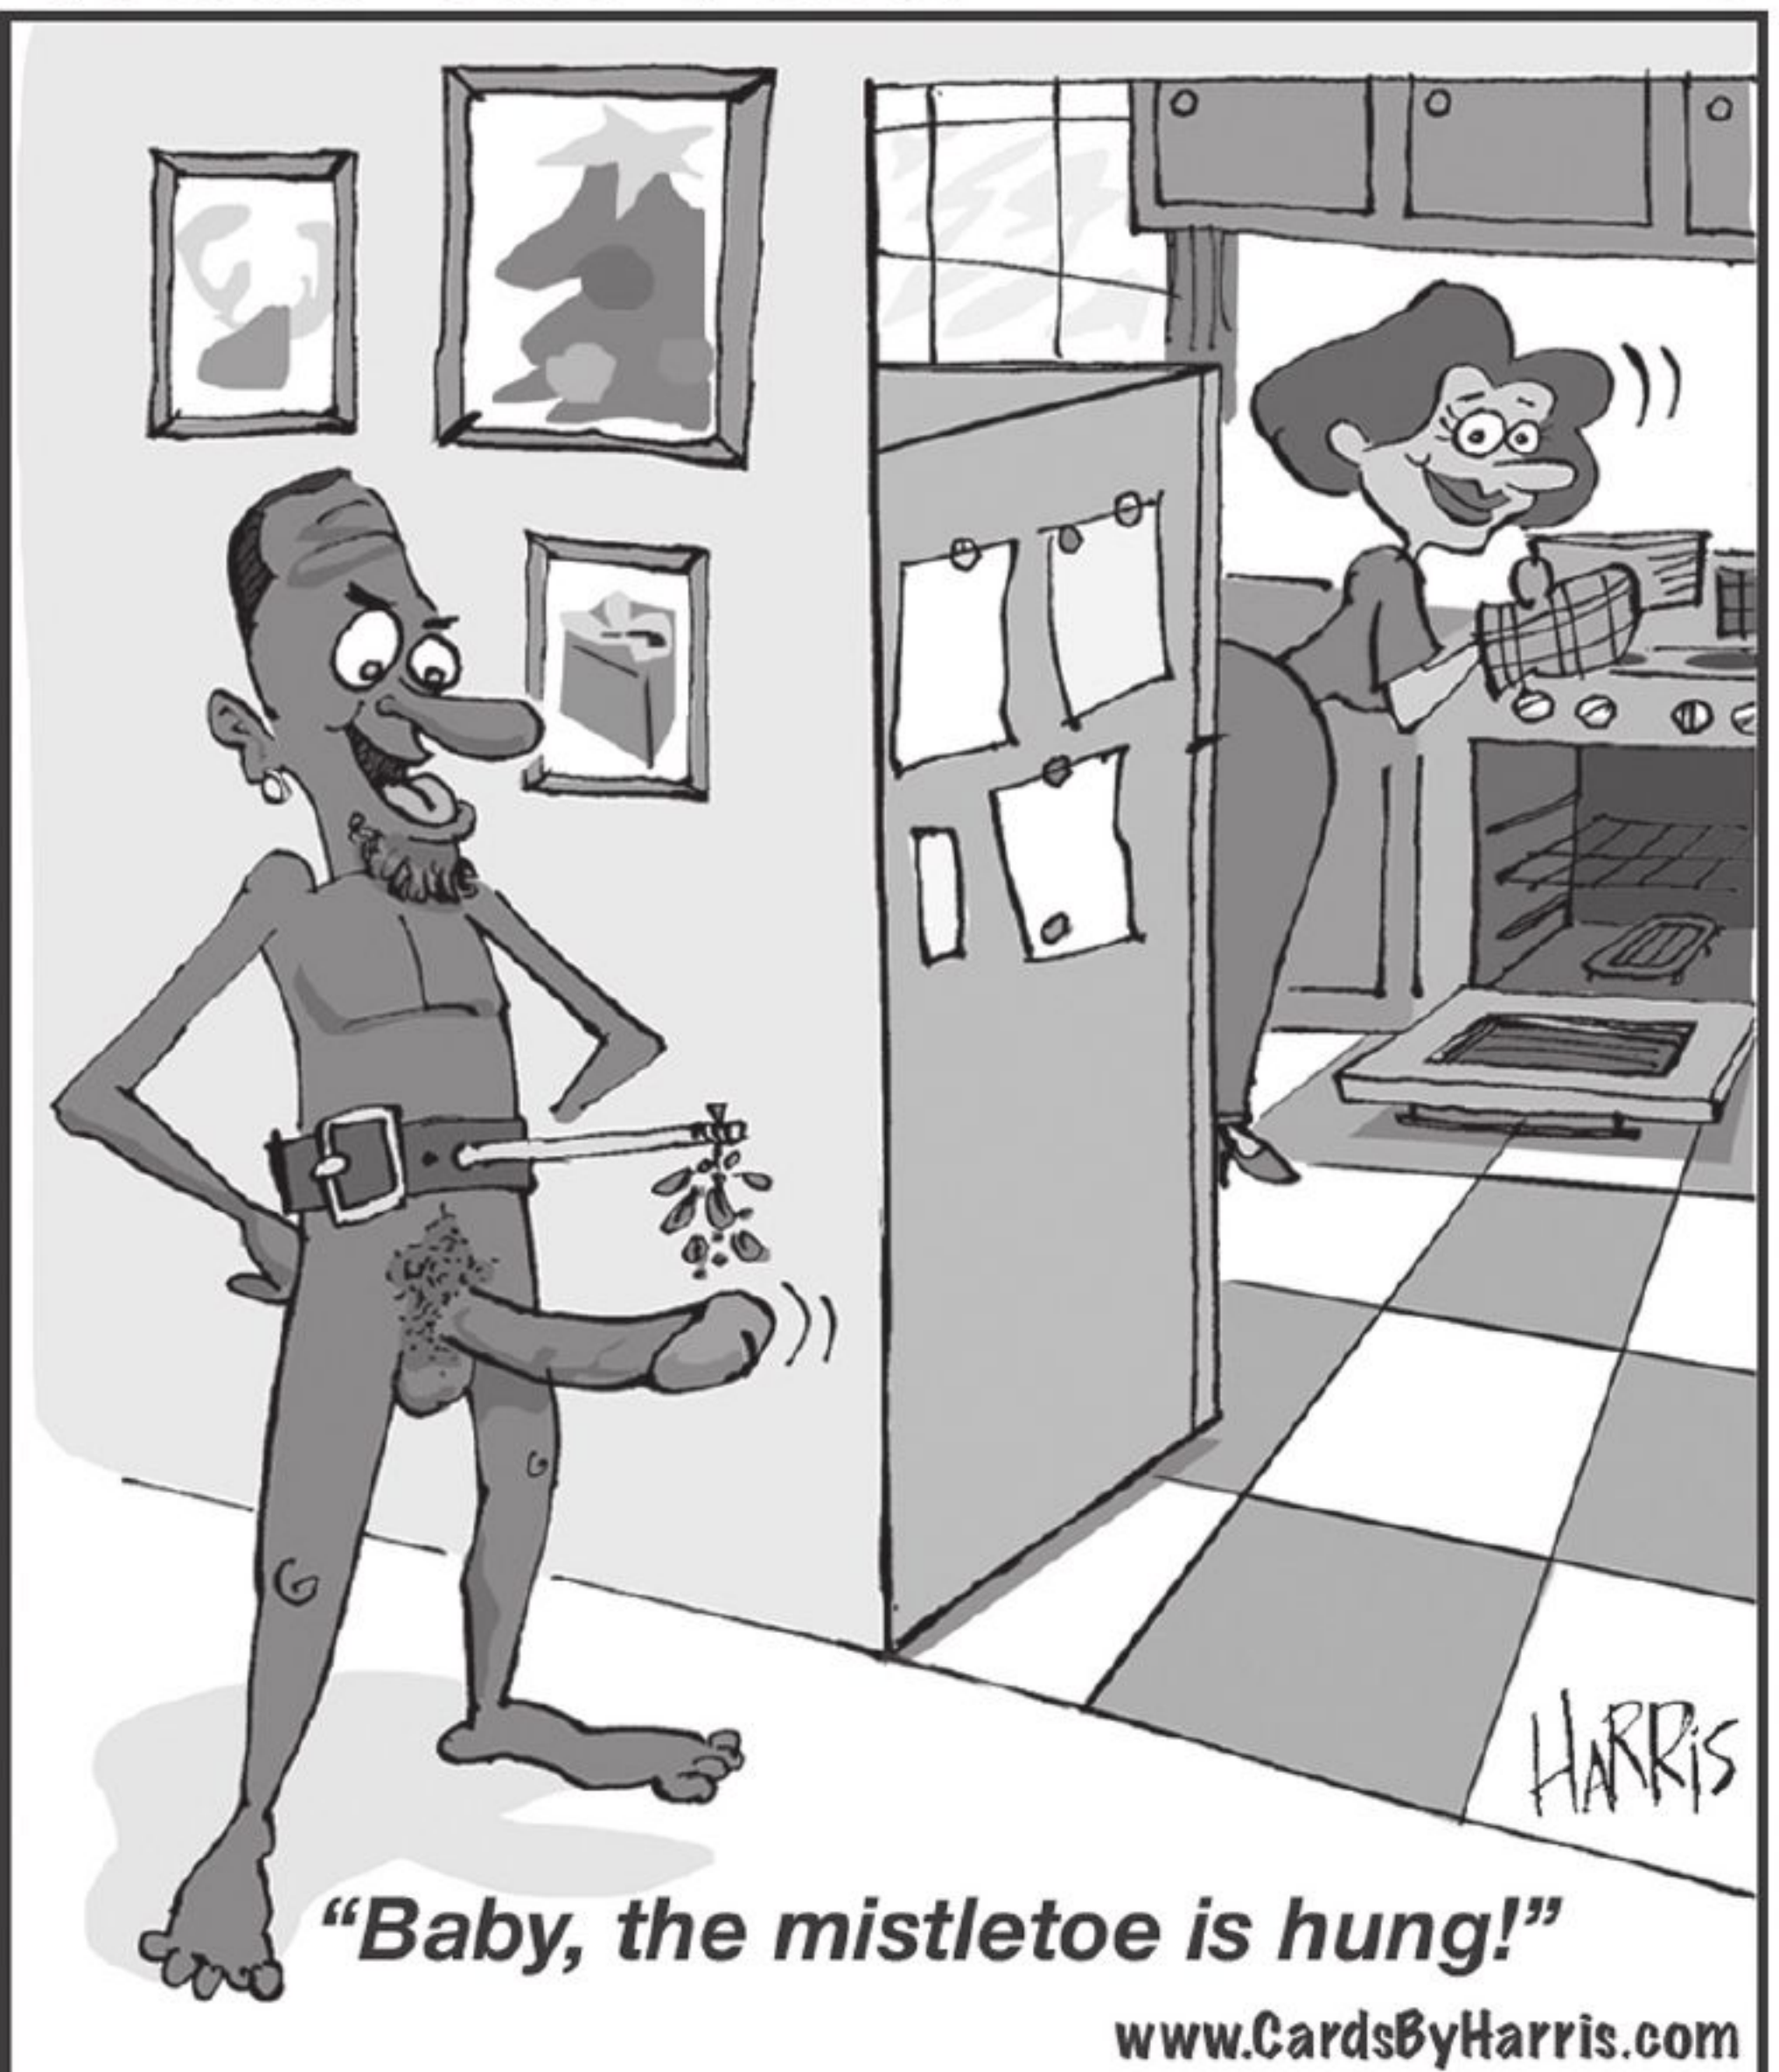

Harkins said the pig's owner was "a little bit embarrassed to say the least," and it took fire crews a little while to compose themselves.

"It was fairly obvious what it was. I think we dealt with it fairly professionally and had a bit of a giggle when we got back to the station," he told public broadcaster ABC.

Game Features Secret Gay Sex Scene

A scene in new video game Dragon Age: Origins features a secret gay sex scene between a man and an elf.

The new game, which has received high ratings, allows players to access the scenes by using the correct combination of chat-up lines on warrior elf Zevran.

Footage then turns to a romantic fireside embrace.

Although developer BioWare has been criticised by many fans, GayGamer.net welcomed the scene, describing it as "deliberate and respectful".

The website said: "With this bare-chested and unflinching portrayal, it feels as if the depiction of gay sex in video games has reached a new level of equal treatment.

"This is more than just a mincing gay pirate or an evasive fade-to-black: there's choreography, tenderness, humour and even an element of sexual politics to Zevran's post-coital conversation.

"Kudos to BioWare for adding a bit of a gay storyline to their game and for dealing with gay romance as even-handedly as they do the heterosexual options."

velope sexually for the past 20 years and all of a sudden a male does it and everybody goes, 'Oh, we can't show that on TV'. To me that's a form of discrimination and it's a double standard, and that's too bad."

Gay Superheroes Star In New Comic

Spandex is set in Brighton and features trans crime fighter Liberty and Diva, a lesbian equivalent of Wonder Woman, as they take on various villains, including the 50ft Lesbian who attacks the city's seafloor.

Other characters are the Adam Lambert-lookalike Neon, twins Butch and Mr Muscles, Glitter, Prowler and Indigo.

Series creator Martin Eden, who made The O Men, said: "Gay people in comics are fairly under-represented, but this new comic aims to address that. Spandex introduces a whole bunch of fabulous new characters who are set to take the comic world by storm."

"It's a fun, experimental comic, full of drama, comedy, romance and action... all done in the best possible taste."

A 120-page graphic novel is set to be released next year but for now, fans will be able to buy Spandex Shorts, a mini series introducing each character.

1,500 Americans Complain Over Adam Lambert's Gay Kiss

More than 1,500 US viewers have complained over a gay kiss and simulated oral sex in American Idol star Adam Lambert's performance at the American Music Awards last Sunday.

The gay singer closed the show at the Nokia Theatre in Los Angeles with his new single For Your Entertainment. During the performance, he simulated oral sex with one male dancer and kissed a male musician.

Lambert had already promised fans the show would be "very sexy".

Viewers contacted the FCC, which is the US television industry's watchdog, to complain that his performance was inappropriate for programme shown when children were watching.

The Parents' Television Council also complained, calling it "tasteless and vulgar".

Lambert brushed off the criticism, saying he was "in the moment and sometimes things just happen".

When asked by CNN whether he had been making a political statement, he said: "I was just really in the moment to be honest with you, but as an afterthought I do feel like there's a bit of a double standard in the entertainment community, on television and on radio.

Transsexual Sportswriter Mike Penner Dead At 52

Transsexual journalist Mike Penner is dead at the age of 52, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Officials believe Penner took his own life. He was pronounced dead Friday evening at Brotman Medical Center in Culver City.

Penner, who spent 25 years reporting on sports at the Los Angeles Times, created a stir in 2007 when he announced he would transition to Christine Daniels. A year later, however, he returned to using the Mike Penner byline.

"Mike was a first-rate journalist, a valued member of our staff for 25 years, and we will miss him," Russ Stanton, the paper's editor said. "He respected our readers a great deal, enough to share with them his very personal journey. Our thoughts and prayers are with his family."

Penner announced he was a transsexual sportswriter in an April 2007 essay published by the Times.

"I am a transsexual sports writer," he wrote. "It has taken more than 40 years, a million tears and hundreds of hours of soul-searching therapy for me to work up the courage to type those words."

Writing about his journey thrust Penner into the national spotlight, and made him an LGBT celebrity.

TV Station Managers Suspended Following Twitter 'Gang Rape' Billboard

The advertisement, for WPMI-TV in Alabama, showed the station's anchors, Greg Peterson and Kym Thurman, with their top weatherman Derek Beasley, alongside the latest headline and the words "Right now on Twitter".

Unfortunately for the station, at one stage the top headline on Twitter read "Three accused of gang rape in Monroeville", and the misleading juxtaposition was caught on camera by a passing motorist as he drove through Mobile, Alabama.

The resulting photograph soon found its way on to a South Carolina blog, the Palmetto Scoop, and then on to social media site Mashable, before being sent around the internet in a series of emails and blog posts.

Now, according to various websites, two of the station's senior staff have been suspended, allegedly over the billboard incident. However, the station has yet to confirm this.

WPMI-TV is a local affiliate of NBC, covering the south of Alabama and much of Florida.

Store Goes Topless For Black Friday

It's hard to run a business in this economic climate. When even big companies are having trouble making ends meet, you know it has to be significantly more difficult for a small business. Fortunately for Caroline Estes, owner of Austin, Texas-based Amazonia Aquariums, she has an idea. Well, actually, she has two ideas, and they're hidden under her shirt. In order to drum up extra business on Black Friday, Caroline will be going topless at her business.

Her business has been around since 1992, but thanks to the economic climate and a relocation, she's struggling to keep the doors open. "I'll save my business with whatever it takes," says Estes. Good for her, but does she think that being half-naked will really push people into buying fish tanks? I mean, look at how well that's working out for Playboy. Then again, it's not like it's going to hurt anything either, and free publicity is the best kind of publicity.

Apple Does It Again

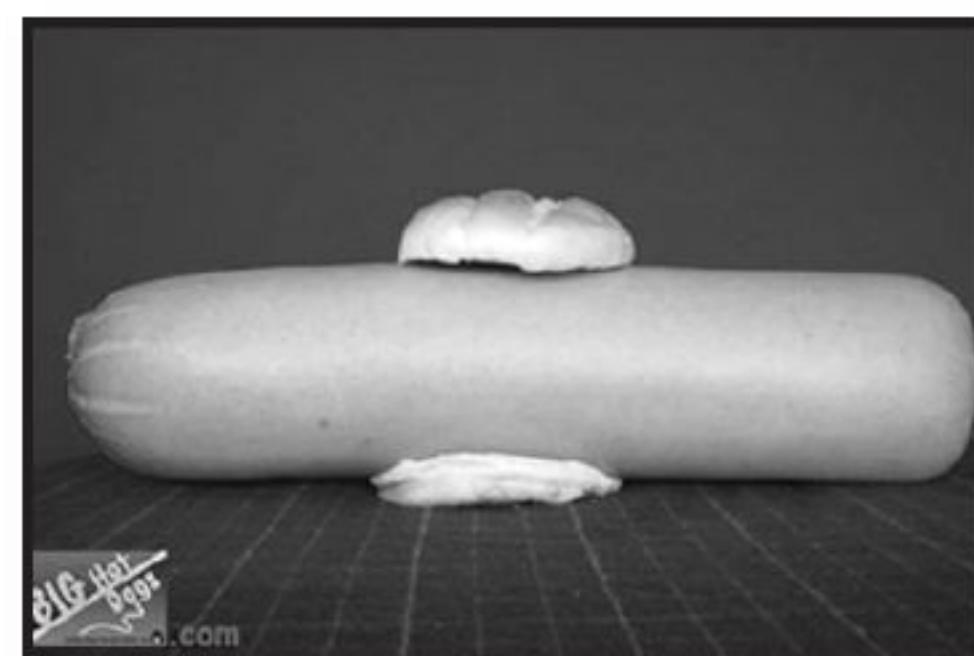

Apple Computer announced today that it has developed a computer chip that can store and play high fidelity music in women's breast implants.

The iTit will cost between $499.00 and $699.00 depending on speaker size.

This is considered a major breakthrough because women have always complained about men staring at their breasts and not listening to them.

BigHotDog.com Makes Big Hot Dogs

Like us, you probably die a little inside every time you see a regular hot dog and realize it can't feed 49 other people.

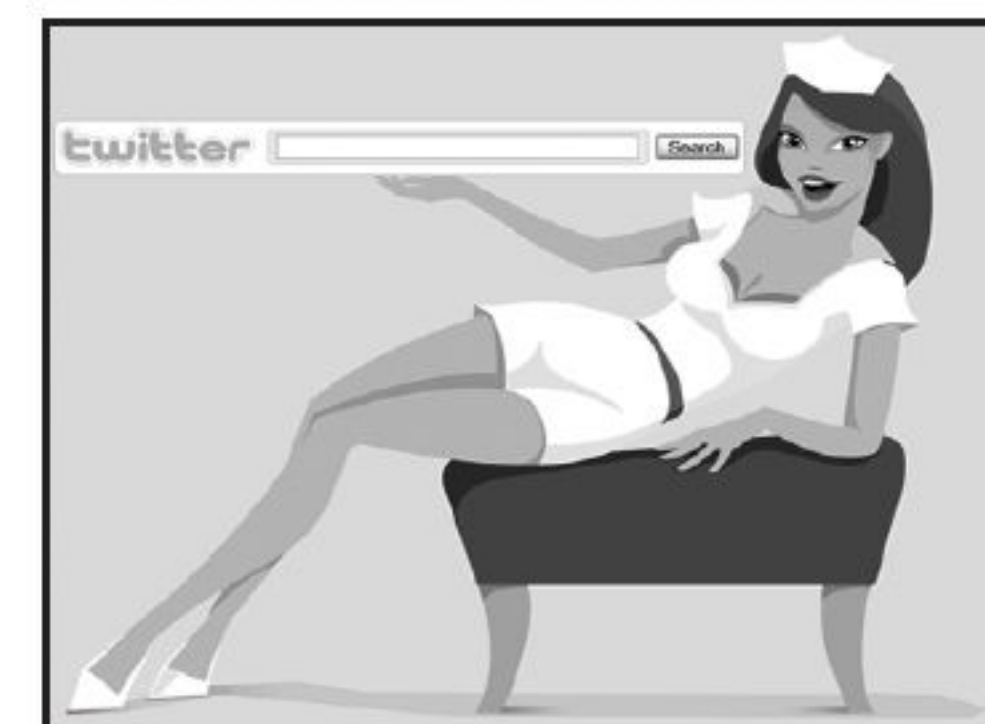

The good people at BigHotDog.com (otherwise known as BigAssHotDog.com) share our indignation over the sad state of phallic meat and created the aptly named Big Hot Dog, a $40 wiener that weighs in at 7 lbs. and is 16 inches long and 4 inches in diameter.

If you can handle being horribly emasculated by your food, you can have one made to order on Tuesdays right in Chicago and invite over a group of friends presumably to slice off chunks of wiener sandwich, as it contains 50 servings. Apparently the inspiration for the dogs came from Denny Abbate, father of the company's owner, who was sick of having tiny hot dogs roll off his grill.

His inspirational quote, "(I)t pissed me off to have to bend down and wipe the damn things off," pretty much sums the whole thing up.

'Twitter' Is the Most-Used Word of 2009

Over the past 11 months, "Twitter" has been the most popular word in the English language.

The Global Language Monitor, a Texas-based group that tracks and analyzes trends in linguistics, counted the number of times various words appeared in the media or on the Internet. "Twitter" was the most successful at infiltrating the public discourse; "Obama" came in second; and "H1N1," "stimulus," "vampire," "2.0," rounded out the top five.

"Barack Obama" topped "Michael Jackson" for the most ubiquitous name of 2009; however, "The King of Pop" edged out "Obama-mania" for the year's most popular phrase.

It probably says something about the way our language is evolving that a microblogging service that limits the number of words with which we can communicate was found to be the year's most-used word. (And even with all that free advertising, no one has figured out how to monetize the thing.)
